The doctor could already publish numerous testimonials from those he has cured in our midst. But he has a rule that he strictly adhers to .- He never mentions the name of a patient, or publishes a reference to any case he treats. There are thousands who are living miserable lives, and are succumbing to disease and death as a result of some misconduct on their part, who could be readily restored to health and vigorous man and womanhood were it not for timidity and the fear of a betrayal of confidence. It is out of regard for this class of cases that he established this rule. The secrets and feelings of his patients are sacred to him. Read the doctor's large advertisement in this issue of our paper, and take advantage of his offer to give free consulation and thus meet a talanted and genial gentlemen who is a master of his profession. "THE GENIUS OF SLAB CREEK."

Well-Known Western Poet and Dramat ist Living the Life of a Hermit in the Wilds of Oregon.

The Retirement of an Indiana Man With a Remarkable Career. Seventy-five miles below the point where the great Columbia river empties its wealth of waters into the Pacific ocean, on a beautiful but wild and sparsely settled portion of the Oregon coast, is Nestucca Bay. Fayette county, near the present It is a region favored by nature, but as yet little known or frequented by man. The bay of itself is of little consequence, but the beach for several miles upon either side, by reason of its natural beauty and adaptation, is bound in time to attract attention as the constantly increasing tide of emigration brings up gradually along with Lew Wallace, John Coagainst the western water border of burn, Nicholas McCarty and many our continent. In many places the coast line is of frowning, black and precipitous mountain bluffs, against which the great deep throbs in alternate fury and gladness as it continues restlessly to work out its part in the endless destiny of ages. Again there are miles of smoothly-beaten the practice of law. In 1853 he joined beach, along which the tireless breakers play the softer music of the sea. land of gold. He drove au ox team Upon this beach, six miles below the bay, a pure little mountain creek empties its crystal waters. Its proper following September. Here he exname (so called after a noted Indian chief) is the Neskowin, but to the the average miner and mountaineer less poetic, if more more practical, white settlers of the vicinity, it is known as "Slab Creek." Upon Slab Creek, then, three miles above its her favors. junction with the old ocean, lives the 'Poet Hermit"-the subject of my sketch. The journey from Portland, the metropolis of Oregon, to his home, is one of more persistent variety than comfort or convenience. Arrived at Sheridan, the end of railway navigation, seventy miles southwest, by means of a little, half-hearted, uncertain sort of a narrow-guage railroad, the traveller is obliged to complete the rest of the distance by wagon, over forty-five miles of the ruggedest possible mountain trail. Once upon the beach, however, and entered upon the picturesque route up the creek, one is amply repaid for the arduous inconvenience of the trip. The forest and mountain scenery up the canon followed by this road is magnificent beyond compare. most capabilities in the way of vegetable production, and the undisturbed growth and decay of centures makes a forest scene worthy the touch of an artist. The rich, brown, virgin soil is everywhere covered with a velvety carpet of bright green moss, here and there overgrown with gi gantic ferns, while ivies, creepers, and clinging vines of all sorts decorate alike the erect trunks of the living trees and the prostrate forms of the fallen monarchs of the forest. These latter lie scattered in endless confusion where the storms of ages have strewn them, giving forth from their decay life and sustenance to the growths of newer years. Except in the narrow pathway of this wild and lonely creek road, and the occasional small clearing of some bold and hardy settler, these sylvan depths remain as they were in the begintric refugee from the human race. Into this sort of a country, and amid such scenes, came, a few years since, a well-known Western author. poet and dramatist, a simple child of nature, to find congenial companionship in his declining days. Samuel W. Smith never attained open national fame as a writer, partly because, probably, he never earned it, and partly because of that inate modesty that has acted as a bushel to many a promising candle that might have shown with brilliant lustre. It was almost two decades ago, and in the then new and illy organized State of California, that Sam Smith was at his best. The San Francisco prints of those days contained many gems of both poetry and prose that owed their birth to his fertile brain. Probably the most noted of these was a story entitled "My Partners," which appeared as a serial in one of the leading papers of the city at that time, and which elicited much favorable notice and comment. The only

ning, a fit habitation for the wildest

animal life as well as the most eccen-

given to the public was a collection of his poems a la Joaquin Miller and the title of "Gems from the Tailings."

Sam Smith was a miner, and wore away his gifted intellect amid the excitements of gold digging in the California fields during the feverish years of from '49 to '69. He is a native of Indians, being born in town of Connersville, September 17, 1826. In his early youth his parents moved to Laporte, Indiana, and the old man now tells some interesting reminiscences of that thriving town when it was a place of but one or two log houses in the woods. He was one of the "Old Seminary Boys" of the now old residents of Indianapolis, and has vivid recollections of that place in its early days. About the time of attaining his majority, Smith moved to Illinois, locating at Pekin, where he taught school for awhile and did a little something at the great throng of emigrants to the across the plains, leaving Illinois in April, and reaching California the perienced the varied vicissitudes of world and then down, as fortune with a fickle and erratic hand dealt out

In 1861 he gave up the pursuit of gold, at the call of his country, and became a private in the Fourth California Infantry, serving therewith till 1866. While in command of a small guard at Los Angeles, during the dark days of the conflict, he did valiant service in quelling a rising secesh mob, for which he was given a commission. After the close of the war he went back to mining, with varied success, repeatedly securing a "stake" and as regularly "blowing it in" on the stock boards of 'Frisco, It was to make a raise after one of

Smith's ability as a playwright, ap plied to him for a piece. Accordingly, within a few days the author appeared before him with the manuscript of "Struck Oil," asking for it one hundred dollars. The actor read the piece over and pompously informed the author that he did not think it would do, but that he would send it to his play carpenter in the East, and that if they could do anything with it he would pay him something. Smith got his Irish up, and telling the actor to join his play carpenter in an excursion to the Shades -or words to that effectmarched off with his manuscript in his pocket. It so happened that J. C. Williamson, the since eminent actor and Australian theatre manager, was playing in the city at the time, also that a friend, the editor of the paper in which "My Partners" appeared, had told him of Smith and that if ever he wanted a new play to see him. The author secured an appointment with Williamson and read him the piece, which was immediately snapped up at the price named-one hundred dollars. Its history thereafter is one of unbounded success. Williamson took it at once to Australia, where, after some difficulty in getting it on the boards, he made a great hit, afterwards playing it around the world and amassing a handsome fortune for himself and his clever wife, Maggie Moore. The actor has never forgotten the author of his great success, and the writer of this had the pleasure of seeing a letter from Australia, wherein he sent the old man a very acceptable Christmas present, two years ago, of three hundred dollars. It is told of Williamson that in trying to get an opening for "Struck Oil" in Melbourne, he was rebuffed by all of the English managers with: "We don't want any more of your Yankee creations; they are all failures." Enlisting the support of a bound volume of his productions ever | wealthy American in the city, he contracted for the leading opera house for one month at $500 per Bret Harte, poorly edited and print- night-the manager thinking by such ed by some friend in 'Frisco, under a price to keep him out. After the first right, and a great success was assured, the manager came around with "By Jove, sir, a great hit, a great hit. We'll share with you." He was answered by the actor laconically with "I've struck oil."

Among other more or less successful dramas by this author are "Tom Bell," a California melo-drama, "Fonda, the Trapper's Bride," "The Blue and the Gray," "California Through Death's Valley," or the "Canon of Gold," and others.

The old man, for he is now sixtythree, lives the life of a hermit, in a typical hermit's hut, amid the wild and romantic scenery I have heretofore endeavored to describe. Having lived for more than forty years without the softening influences of family or domestic ties, and one might say almost without the pale of civilization, he knows do other life than that of the pioneer miner of '49, and would be content with no other, The writer's visit to him, impelled partly by curiosity and partly by the duty of kinship, revealed an interesting character and an interesting spot. He has taken a soldier's homestead in the wilderness, and from its fastnesses, carved him out a little clearing on which he raises of that day, being first up in the enough to support himself and his companions-a faithful dog, a cow, a pig and a cat-and here, alone with this happy family, he lives what to him is doubtless the life of a king. He is an omniverous reader, and his intellect in its surroundings is as a diamond flashing in a dung-hill. By reason of his wide general information, his reputation, and his many eccentricities of dress and speech, he is known to everyone in the region round, as the "Genius of Slab Creek," or the "Bard of Tillimook." Judge Terry, of California, Shot in the Heart.

RESULT OF THE SHARON-HILL CASE

...der Committed by Deputy United . Marshal Nagle Who Was with Jan When Assaulted-Mrs. Walles a Scene and Wants to Shap of the Sheld After the Shooting.

LATHROP, L. Aug. 14.-Upon the arrival of the southern oversand train here at 7:30 Wednesday morning, United States Supreme Judge Stephen J. Field and Deputy United States Marshal Nagle walked into the depot dining-room for breakfast and sat down side by side. Soon after Judge David Terry and his wife came in also. They were proceeding to another table when Mrs. Terry, evidently recognizing Justice Field, did not sit down, but retired to the train for some unknown purpos

Slapped Justice Field's Face. Before she reached it, however, and as soon as she had left the dining room, Judge Terry approached Justice Field and, stooping over him, slapped his face. At this ncture Deputy Marshal Negle arose from his seat and shot Judge Terry through the heart. As he was falling the deputy marshal shot again, but missed him, the bullet going through the floor. Both shots were fired in An Exciting Time.

The judge never uttered a sound after being shot. Judge Terry had hardly fallen when Mrs. Terry rushed to the side of his body and threw herself upon it. Then ensued a scene of wildest excitement. People rushed from the dining room and others rushed in. During this time Justice Field and Deputy Marshal Nagle retreated to the sleeping car, where they were securely locked within, while Mrs. Terry called upon the citizens to arrest them. Before the train pulled out Constable Walker entered the sleeper, and was carried away on board the train. He informed the spectators that he knew his duty and would perform it.

Mrs. Terry Wanted to Get at Him. During the time the train was standing at the depot Mrs. Terry was running wildly alternately from the body of her husband to the sleeper, and demanding admittance that she might slap Justice Field's face, and at the same time begging that they be detained and have their examination here. Previous to the entrance of Constable Walker into the sleeper Sheriff Purvis and a deputy of Stanislaus county had already taken charge of Deputy United States Marshal Nagle. The tragedy is a result of the troubles growing out of the famous Sharon-Hill case, which had been before the courts since 1885.

The Murderer Arrested.

After the shooting Deputy Marshal Nagle backed up against the wall of the diningroom and warned every one not to arrest him, saying he was a United States officer in discharge of his duty. There was no semblancs of an attempt to molest him at any time. Constable Walker took Deputy Nagle from the train at Tracy and proceeded with him to Stockton, where he now is in jail. District Attorney White ordered the arrest of Justice Field upon his arrival in San Francisco, and telegraphed the order to the sheriff of San Francisco.

Verdict Against Deputy Nagle. The coroner's jury on the killing of ex-Judge Terry brought in a verdict declaring that he came to his death by a gunshot wound inflicted by Deputy Marshal Nagle.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17. - The sheriff of San Joaquin county arrived here Thursday night, and yesterday afternoon served a warrant of arrest upon Judge Field. There was some doubt as to whether the warrant would be endorsed by a judge of San Francisco county as required by law, but this endorsement was obtained. Immediately after the warrant was served, a writ of habeas corpus was sworn out before Judge Sawyer, of the circuit court, and heard by him in chambers Justice Sawver on $5,000 bail.

FOR GOVERNOR OF IOWA.

The Republican State Convention Nominates J. G. Hutchison.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 15.—The Republican state convention took twenty-two ballots for governor Wednesday night, the figures being very fluctuating and Hutchinson on the twentieth ballot having within three votes of enough, but no choice was made and adjournment was taken. For permanent president B. I. Salinger was chosen.

The delegates got down to work promptly at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. There was an immense crowd present and the greatest excitement was apparent, as it was felt sure that a nomination was not far off. prediction was fulfilled, as on the third ballot of the morning, and the twenty-fifth successive one, J. G. Hutchison was nominated for governor.

The Other Nominations. It took two ballots to select a lieutenant governor, and his name when chosen was Senator Poyneer, of Tama. Josiah H. Given was nominated by acclamation for supreme judge, Henry Sabin for superintendent of public instruction and Spencer Smith for railway commissioner.

The Platform.

The platform indorses Harrison's administration; favors liberal pensions; demands protection to American industry; indorses state railway legislation; demands the prohibition of unions among business men; stands by prohibition; favors courts of arbi-tration for labor troubles; sympathizes with the Des Moines "riverlanders," and indorses Governor Larrabee's administration.

A resolution indorsing Pension Commissioner Tanner was adopted and the convention adjourned sine die.

Mckinney Wins in Virginia.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 15.—The state Democratic convention adjourned at midnight Wednesday after one ballot for governor with no choice, but McKinney had a big lead. R. H. Cardwell was chosen permanent chairman.

Upon the reassembling of the convention Thursday morning, Capt. McKinney was nominated for governor by acclamation. Balance of Ticket and Platform.

The convention completed its labors by the nomination of John Hodge Tyler for lieutenant governor by acclamation; R. Taylor Scott, of Fauquier, for attorney general, and the adoption of a platform, which praises Lee's administration; deprecates the opening of the state debt question; opposes convict labor in competition with free labor; indorses the national platform as to tariff and internal revenue; favors complete remonetization of silver; asks for the abolition of the tax on tobacco and fruit brandies, and advocates appropriations for disabled Confederate

MRS. MAYBRICK'S CASE.

Commutation of the Death Sentence To Be Recommended.

London, Aug. 16 .- It is announced that Home Secretary Matthews will recommend to the queen the commutation of the death sentence of Mrs. Maybrick to penal servitude for life and that the commutation of sentence will be announced after the queen has given formal assent, Mr. Matthews, Justice Stephens, the lord chancellor and medical experts held a conference Friday in the home office, with a view of arriving at a decision in the Maybrick case. The conference lasted four hours.

Assumed That She Was Innocent. Home Secretary Matthews and the experts assumed that Mrs. Maybrick was not guilty, and acting upon this assumption sifted every scrap of the testimony given, espe-cially that in relation to the husband's craze for arsenic, which is of great weight, and it is believed turned the scale in the prisoner's favor. NINE OF THE TENANTS DEAD.

A Small Fire to New York with Very 1 atal Results.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.-A small fire at 305 Seventh avenue at 4:45 yesterday morning proved very disastrous to the lives of the sleeping people in the five-story tenement, The following are the names of the victims who met their death: William Glennon, aged 60; Nellie Geothan, aged 20; Mary Wales, aged 31; Jane Wales, aged 4; Thomas Wales, aged 2; Bertha Lusting, aged 4; William Mc-Kee, aged 47; James Jeffery, aged 55; also an unknown woman, aged about 45. Of the dead Glennon, Bertha Lusting, and McKee were burned to death. The others were suffocated by the smoke.

William Glennon, Jr., aged about 18, was badly burned about the face and feet, and was taken to the New York hospital. The fire is now said to have been first discovered in the rear of the first floor, occupied by John Snyder as a restaurant, and Snyder has been arrested on suspicion of having set the building on fire. There was a fearful panic among the other tenants, there being about sixty people in the building.

The Body Identified. The body of the woman burned to death, and at first reported as unknown, was identified last night as that of Annie Lyons, a servant out of work, who lived with Mrs. Jef-

Ditched by a Cow.

VINCENNES, Ind., Aug. 19.—J. C. Lyons was killed outright, C. W. Pauly fatally mangled, an engine and eight cars wrecked and a large number of cattle killed in an accident Saturday at Montgomery, twentyfive miles from here. While a freight train of the Ohio and Mississippi railway was running at high speed it struck a cow and the engine and eight cars were thrown into a ditch and demolished. The engineer and fireman saved themselves by jumping. passenger trains on the road were delayed throughout the day.

of responsible parties to commence treatment.

COMMON SENSE AS APPLIED TO MEDICINE. It is well known by all intelligent observers that it is impossible for any person, no matter how highly endowed by nature or acquirements, to become thoroughly conversant with all the divisions of the science of medicine. Nearly all who have attained distinction in medicine have made some special department their life work, eing fitted therefor by natural adaptation or selection, special education and experience. The loctor having devoted several years to the special study of chronic diseases in hospitals and general practice, and having the most recent and improved instruments for finding out diseased contitions in the organs of the body, he proposes to devote the whole of his time to the practice of these specialties. He adopts the following plan, which is peculiar to the large hospitals, and is not and never has been the practice of country doctors: He carefully notes the symposm of the patient, ascertains the condition of the internal organs, examines the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat by the most approved instruments and methods, all of which he carefully records in his register for future reference. In this way, he ascertains the true nature of the disease and its cause. Anowing the disease, he knows the changes it produces in the tissues, and, knowing the changes, ack people consult him he readily tells them whether he can cure or help them, or if they are berond hope.

SCIENTIFIC EXAMINATIONS.

The examinations are in accordance with anatomical and physical science, as he will convince the most skeptical. DR. RORICK has attained the most wonderful success in the treatment of cases to which he devotes his special attention. After years of experience he has discovered the most infallible method of curing weaknesses in the back or limbs, involuntary discharges, impopotency, general debility, nervousness, languor, confusion of ideas, palpitation of the heart, loss of memory, trembling and timidity, diseases of the nose, throat and lungs, affections of the liver, stomach and bowels—those terrible disorders arising from the solitary habits of youth and secret practices, blighting the most radiant hopes and rendering marriage impossible.

CHARLES H. CHASE, Nurseryman, (Mention this Paper.) 31-St Rochester, N.Y. LITTLE WILLIE.

Poor little Willie, With his many pretty wiles; Worlds of wisdom in his looks, And quaint, quiet smiles; Hair of amber, touched with Gold of heaven so brave; All lying darkly hid In a workhouse grave.

You remember little Willie; Fair and funny fellow! La Sprang like a lily
From the dirt of poverty;
Poor little Willie! Not a friend was nigh, When, from the cold world, He crouched down to die.

In the day we wandered foodless, Little Willie cried for bread; In the night we wandered homeless, Little Willie cried for bed; Parted at the workhouse door, Not a word we said;
Ah, so tired was poor Willie,
And so sweetly sleep the dead.

Twas in the dead of winter, The world brought in the new year On a tide of mirth, But, for lost little Willie Not a tear we crave; Cold and hunger cannot wake him In his workhouse grave.

We thought him beautiful, Felt it hard to part: We loved him dutiful; Down, down, poor heart! The storms they may beat;
The winter winds may rave;
Little Willie feels not, In his workhouse grave.

No room for little Willie; In the world we had no part; on him stared the Gorgon eye,
Through which looks no heart.
"Come to me," said Heaven;
And, if Heaven will save,
Little matters though the door Be a workhouse grave.

When Car Brakes Grate.

"Conductor!" It was in a Fourth avenue car, and all the other passengers looked up when an elderly man, with the linger-ing fragrance of hayseed suggested by his apparel and the irritability of an overtaxed brain or crotchety disposition apparent in his tone, snapped out that imperative summons. The conductor, a pleasant faced, gentlemanly looking fellow, glanced at the speaker, and stepping forward politely inquired what he wanted.

"Tell that driver to take the brake off immediately," snarled the excited passenger. I first thought he was a "crank," as I had noticed nothing unusual in the application of the brake, but, rather to my surprise, the polite conductor vouchsafed a soft answer, thich foiled howaver to divinish the which failed, however, to diminish the old man's wrath. 'He has to use the brake in order to avoid running on the horses' heels,' explained the knight of the nickel. "The brake on this car is new and will grate like this for a day or two until it gets worn smooth. It can't be help-ed." Then he resumed his station on the rear platform and after several irritable imprecations the dissatisfied passenger followed him, cursed the driver, stopped the car and alighted.

After my attention had thus been called to the jarring wheels I, too, suffered somewhat from the contin-ued grating, and before leaving the car I inquired if passengers often complained of new brakes.

'Yes, some one will remark upon it nearly every trip," said the conduct-or. "However, it don't happen very often. I don't know how long a car brake lasts, as we change cars so frequently, but whenever I have the ill luck to strike a new brake there is sure to be some unpleasantness over the grating noise. The driver obliged to keep his car in check all the time, and a rough, new brake is not pleasant for 'high strung,' nervous people."—New York Herald.

What They Bought.

One of the talkative people that I've met at this busy, cheerful place, this week, is a drummer. "I call this a pretty slow town,"

"You do, eh?" "I should say so. In a town of this size, out west, there would be five or six big hotels, three or four newspa-sations with the dog daily and the seed pers, two or three elevators, half a dozen railroads, a dozen beer gardens, three or four shooting galleries and a crowd on the street all the time. To a man that's been traveling in the west, this town seems like a country village. It's so all through the east. Dead, dead, dead. Can't sell any goods. No use to try. I'm going to skip for the live west, again, right off. The last western town I was in was a daisy. I sold four customers bills of six or eight hundred dollars apiece in less than four hours and didn't half try. It would paralyze me to find a town like that in the east. Confound the east, anyway. It's dead, I tell you, I made of pickets to surmount and, behave no use for it. I want to be in a ling afraid that if he did not succeed in a line afraid that if he did not succeed place where there's some life.'

"What do you sell?" asked a mixl it, my boy!"-Lewiston Journal.

Now fasten this big paper around three sides of a clotheshorse. Some of the party go inside and look through the holes in the paper, placing their faces close to it. The rest remain outside and try to decide the owner of each of the various eyes beaming upon them. Strange to say, however familiar all the players may Teeth Drawn by Electricity.

Boston people nowadays have their superfluous teeth drawn by electricity. Inasmuch as all new ideas in the arts and sciences are spread from this enlightened metropolis originally, and from hence extend over the country, there is little doubt that sooner or later this new method will supersede laughing gas and ether in other big cities of the Union. The process in question is very simple, scarce any apparatus being required beyond an ordinary two cell battery, with vibrator attachment. This attachment is a thin strip of metal fastened at the ends, which is made to vibrate a thousand or more times per second by the electric current. At each vibration the circuit is cut off and renewed again, the effect being to give a perfectly steady flow of the mysterious fluid. In order to make sure that the flow is quite satisfactory, the operator tunes the machine—assisted by a little reed tuning pipe—ustil the strip of metal sings "A." So far, so good. Now, to the battery are attached three wires. Two of them have handles at the ends, and the third is hitched to a forceps. The patient in the chair is given a handle to hold in each hand, and the current is turned on gradually until it becomes painful. Then he is told to grasp the handles as strongly as possible, the electricity—having been switched off for a moment-is turned on again suddenly, and the dental surgeon applies his forceps simulta-neously to the tooth. The instant the molar is touched, it, as well as the parts surrounding, becomes electrified and absolutely insensible to pain. When it is withdrawn from the socket the subject of the operation feels not the slightest disagreeable sensation. A jerk and the tooth is out, the patient drops the electric handles and the painless affair is over.—Boston Herald.

A NEGRO CUSTOM.

Putting Playthings and Medicine Bottles on the Graves of Children.

While strolling last Sunday a little way outside the city limits, near the head of Eighteenth street, I noticed two carriages filled with colored people entering an inclosure. I saw that it was a cemetery and followed. A stalwart negro took from one of the carriages a small coffin, and with the ceremony of a short prayer, it was de-posited in the earth. Six or eight friends of the dead babe stood with tearful eyes during the few minutes occupied in filling the little grave; then they re-entered the carriages and drove away. Just before leaving a woman, whom I judged to be the be-reaved mother, laid upon the mound two or three infants' toys.

Looking among the large number of graves of children, I observed this practice to be very general. Some were literally covered with playthings. There were nursing bottles, rattle box-es, tin horses and wagons, "Noah's " sets of dishes, marbles, tops, china cups and saucers, slates, picture books in endless number and variety. Many of them had apparently lain there for years, articles of a perishable nature having been almost destroyed by sun and storm. There were very few children's graves which did not have something of this kind upon them. On many of the larger graves were pretty vases, statuettes and other articles suitable to more adult years. Upon inquiry I was told that this custom is almost universal among the colored people in the south. The sentiment that prompts it readily suggests itself, but it is not quite so easy to understand another feature which I noticed. Upon fully half the small graves, lying or standing, partly bur-ied in the earth, were medicine bot-tles of every size and shape. Some were nearly full and all contained They Have 'Em.

A man who knows it all writes in The Agriculturist: "Have regular hours for feeding hens." Now, I have made a passing study of hens, and if there is one minute of all the hours of daylight, from the moment it is light enough to see the surface of stition. Lust why they do it is not were nearly full and all contained more or less of the medicine which had no doubt been used in the effort to ward off the visit of death. The usual number of these on each grave was from one to three, but on one I counted eight. The placing of these bottles is certainly a singular conceit and would seem to border on superstition. Lust why they do it is not

How a Darky Can Sleep.

I saw a queer illustration of the sleeping qualities of a negro the other day. Every one knows that a genu-ine, unadulterated negro can sleep on a board with his face to the sun and without covering for his eyes on the hottest July day—and he sleeps as peacefully as a white man on the softest cot and in the darkest room. It has been said that he could sleep under the mouth of a cannon in operation and I believe it. Or, at least, I believe the one of which I shall speak could. In going down to Augusta a few days ago on the regular day passenger we were a few miles below Union Point when the train suddenly stopped. The fireman jumped from the engine and ran back by the passenger coach, crying, "There's a dead nigger behind." Everybody looked out, and sure enough just behind the rear coach, with his head resting on the cross ties, was what appeared to be a dead negro man. Two or three train hands and a crowd of negroes ran back to see if the train had struck

A Live Trout in a Block of Ice.

The Virginia City (Nev.) Chronicle is responsible for the following: "John Commerton, the Comstock ice king, while loading his wagon yesterday morning, noticed a dark substance in the center of a block of ice, and removing the sawdust from the surface of the block discovered a trout frozen in the center of it.

He placed the ice in a tub of water and when he returned home a few hours later the block had melted and he was astonished to find the fish, which had been in its icy grasp for several months, swimming about in the tub. The trout measures thirteen inches in length, and, though slightly emaciated, is not otherwise the worse for its long fast.

more decent Democratic neighbors. This revolt is encouraging if it is unexpected.

However much it may deplore the retrograde step in the matter of books of learning provided for the schools of Indiana by the late Democratic Legislature, the Times has no tears to shed for the dethronement of some of the school book monopolies that have lorded it over the school machinery of the State. As between the Democratic politicians and a book octopus like that of Van Antwerp Bragg & Co., the people are somewhere near the divide between the devil and the deep sea, and the Times is particularly desirous that anything it may say in denunciation of the work of the former shall not be taken as in the interests, directly or indirectly, of the latter. The officiousness and apparent desperation with which the aforementioned firm has interfered and continues to interfere in matters of our own State educational and legislative concern is evidence enough of the severity of the blow dealt it by the new law. This concern has long held something very much akin to a monopoly of certain lines of school furnishings in Indiana, and has by methods peculiar to itself managed to hold such against all competition, hesitating at nothing to secure its ends. Had this establishment been less interested in its lobby opposition to school-book legislation, and were it less active in its present schemes of antagonism to the workings of the new system many people might form different and more far-reaching opinions on the subject. Furthermore, the fact that the trail of this serpent is over at least two of our Republican officials high in the service of the State is no credit to those officials, nor does it add weight to their opposition to the new law.

It is not an unreasonable hope that the epidemic of public spirit and improvement that has succeeded in breaking out over the city of ority in the county, and give us that long needed new court house. WOODCOCKS AND WORMS

They Imitated the Sound of Rain Upon the Ground and the Worms Came Up. When the moon rose I took a position near one of the moist places where the borings were freshest and most plentiful, and awaited develop-ments. For a long time the bright light of the moon fell upon the spot I wished to observe, and I could see everything with the utmost plainness At about 8 o'clock a woodcock drop-ped down silently beside the brook. Presently another bird walked out of the shadow and joined it. Both began to "bore" for worms, an operation I had never seen before, and a curious performance it was. The birds would rest their bills upon the mud and stand in this position for several sec-onds, as if listening. Then with a sudden, swift movement, they would drive the bill its entire length in the soil, hold it so for a second, and then as swiftly withdraw it. Though I watched the birds carefully with the glass, I could not detect the presence of a worm in their bills when they

But the subsequent process gave me the clew to their method of feeding. After having bored over a considerable piece of ground-a square foot or more-they proceeded to execute what looked comically like a war dance upon the perforated territory. They also occasionally tapped the ground with the tips of their wings. My intense curiosity to know the possible utility of this process was at length gratified by seeing a worm crawl, half length, from one of the borings, when it was immediately pounced upon and devoured by one of the woodcock. Presently another worm made its appearance, and so on until the wood-cocks had devoured as many as a dozen of them. Then the "vein" seemed exhausted, and the birds took their bait, and have come to the conclusion that certain birds are a great deal wis-er than certain bipeds without feathers. If you will take a sharpened stick and drive it into the ground a number of times, in a spot which is prolific with worms, and then tap on the ground with the stick for a few minutes, you will find that the worms will come to the surface, and that they will come up through the holes which you have made. I account for it by the supposition that the tapping of the stick somehow affects the worms the same as the patter of rain, and it is a well known fact that worms come to the surface of the ground when it rains. The antics of the woodcocks after they had made their borings, then, were simply mimetic, and in-tended to delude worms into the belief that it was raining in the upper world. The worms, being deceived, came up and were devoured. this may seem ridiculous, but, if it is not true, will some naturalist please state how a woodcock can grasp and devour a worm when its bill is confined in a solid, tight fitting tunnel of soil, and also how it is enabled to know the exact spot where it may sink its bill and strike the worm? And further, of all those who have seen a woodcock feeding, how many ever saw it withdraw a worm from the ground with its bill?--Forest and

How Glucose Is Made.

The process of making glucose will be best understood by following the corn from the time it enters the factory until it runs out at a spigot, a clear, odorless liquid. The shelled corn is first soaked for several days in water, to soften the hull and prepare it for the cracking process. The softened corn is conveyed by elevators to one of the highest stories of the feature. of the highest stories of the factory. and shoveled into large hoppers, from which it passes into mills that merely crack the grains without reducing them at once to a fine meal. cracked grain is then conducted to a large tank filled with rinsing water. The hulls of the corn float at the top of the water, the germs sink to the bottom, and the portions of the grain containing the starch, becoming grad-ually reduced to flour by friction, are held in solution in the water. By an ingenious process both the hulls and the germs are removed, and the flour part now held in solution contains nothing but starch and gluten.

This liquid is then made to flow over a series of tables, representing several acres in area, and the difference in the specific gravity of the two substances.causes the gluten and the starch to separate without the use of chemicals. The gluten is of a golden yellow color, and the starch snow white. By the time gluten has been completely eliminated the starch assumes a plastic form, and is collected from the separating tables by wheel-barrowfuls and taken to a drying room, where it is prepared as the starch of commerce, or is placed in a chemical apparatus to be converted into glucose. - American Analyst.

Couldn't Fool Her Twice.

A bright little girl was taken by her father out into the country to visit an uncle whom she called Walsh. As the two drove along the country road, the little one spied a scarecrow in the field, and exclaimed: "O papa, there's Uncle Walsh." Papa laughed hugely at the joke, but told her that she was mistaken; that what she saw was only a scarecrow. A little further along and Uncle Walsh's farm was reached, and way out in the field was Uncle Walsh at work. The little girl's eyes were the first to catch sight of him, but she wasn't to be fooled so easily this time. "O papa," she cried, "look at that scarecrow!" Papa has not got through laughing yet.—Buffalo Express.

"Six years ago I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs and soon developed all the alarming symptoms of Consumption. I had a cough, night sweats, bleeding of the lungs, pains in chest and sides, and was so prostrated as to be confined to my bed most of the time. After trying various prescriptions, without benefit, my physician finally determined to give me Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I took it, and the effect was magical. I seemed to rally from the first dose of this medicine, and, after using only three bottles, am as well and sound as ever."

HACK DRIVERS' GRIEVANCES.

They Have Them Against Each Other, the Man "with a Pull" and the Public.

In even the hack business trust tendencies are manifesting themselves, according to a cabman, whom a reporter of The News met at one of the Jersey City ferries the other day. The vast majority of hacks in this city, he explained, are under the control of one man who claims to have a "pull" at the city hall, but who does not own a single horse or vehicle himself.
"How can that be?" asked the re

"Well, he enjoys the privilege of going within the wharf gates and soliciting patronage while the regular hackmen are kept outside. He, con-sequently, has a monopoly of the business connected with four or five of the principal ocean steamship lines, and the others can have what is left after he gets through.

'He makes arrangements with the big car companies which enable him to collect large commissions on the business he turns over to them. Hack-men," the speaker thought, "pan out about the same as other people. the matter of honesty their reputations are bad," he explained, "because many persons think they charge outrageous prices, yet if those persons were to consider how much time is lost in waiting for an ocean steamer to tie up or a train to arrive they would not have so bad an opinion of the cabmen.

"Of course," in reply to another question the hackman proceeded, "I know some cab drivers are dishonest. but they belong to that class to whom licenses are issued without investigation as to character. Anybody can get a license in this city. Men who own their rigs are generally an upright lot, and the rascals are those fellows who hire a cab or coach for a few days or weeks in order to get a chance to fleece he public.

" 'Have we any rule about customers among us?' Certainly. It is that the first driver at a gate should have first position, and each man afterward in the order of his arrival, and is understood by all hackmen. If the first man cannot arrange satisfactory terms with his first call, the call is passed over to the next, and so on, the last in the line being generally the cheapest. "Why is the last man in the line cheapest?" "Because the very fact of his coming late shows that he has coined money elsewhere, and so can afford to

"If a man at the head steps out of a line at the ferry or railroad station he loses his position, but not when in a line before steamship passengers. When in the latter line he holds his position until he makes a bargain." "What class of people pay high rates with the least reluctance? "South Americans. They never kick. The average English tourist and New York city club man are the hardest to deal with. The Englishman is accustomed to the cheap rates of London, and cannot understand our higher charges over here.

"The average Frenchman is a good fellow to deal with. His trips are generally to hotels close by, and he pays well. Bostonians as a class are not good food for hackmen. The 25 cent rates in that city lead them to ex. pect similar rates elsewhere.

'Whenever you see a hackman whose badge number does not correspond with the carriage number keep a sharp eye on him, because some-thing is wrong about the fellow," was hackman's parting advice.—New York News.

How Passover Bread Is Made.

passover braid, the kneading is done in the ordinary way. Pure gunpow-der water is the only component add-The time for the dough to be baked is reduced to the minimum. It is broken into flat cakes, and then run between rollers into very thin sheets. Over these workmen roll a pronged steel to perforate the dough, so that air holes may be seen in baked cakes. A steel hoop cuts the dough into round, flat sheets, which are then ready for the oven. The baker then stands with a paddle attached to a very long handle. With the aid of attached to a boy he thrusts the cakes into the brick compartment, and in half a minute pulls them out ready for use. A mat zath cake is round, about four feet in diameter, somewhat browned, and having slight air hole projections on its surface. They have a rather pleasant taste, not unlike that of crackers, and make a good substitute for bread In some places there is a demand throughout the entire year for the unleavened cakes by dyspeptics. About eight cakes weigh a pound, which in large quantities sell at eight cents. The cakes are very brittle, and their pieces are ground up into fine meal. This is the substitute for wheat flour in the household during the passover. -The Millstone.

Chinese Taxation.

The system of taxation is quite unlike that of other countries. Taxes outside of Peking are paid on arable land only, the tax varying with the crop producing quality of the soil. Inside the city of Peking there is no tax on land, houses or personal property. Goods brought to the city gate pay a lekin tax, but are exempt from taxation afterward. The only tax on land and houses in Peking is on the sale of real estate, 10 per cent. being charged on the price obtained for the property sold. There is also a tax resembling license fee. Outside of Peking, Chinese subjects are liable to be called on to perform certain duties whenever the emperor passes through their districts, but this duty may be avoided by the payment of a small tax. All money spent on public account in Peking comes from the imperial treasury, and the expenditure is not limited to funds raised by taxation within the city. The bulk of the people in Peking pay no taxes whatever. The man who owns his house and lot and implements of labor enjoys his earnings without tax or deduction .- Banker's Magazine.

Sunnites and Sheites.

There are among the Moslems two great divisions, the Sunnites and the Sheites. The Turks are all Sunnites, the Persians all Sheites. They differ in that the latter regard Ali, the ne-phew and son-in-law of Mohammed, with greater love than they do Mo-hammed himself. Ali married Fatima, Mohammed's daughter, and by her had two sons, Hassan and Husein. is said that Mohammed predicted their death; and indeed one day Ali and his two sons, and a large number of friends and attendants, were massacred. The Sheites declare that Mohammed encompassed their death, and to this day the two sects hate each other even more than they do the Christians.

The anniversary of this fatal day is celebrated religiously every year among the Sheites. They gather in groups around a certain man, who, eated in their midst on some elevated spot, begins the recital in a monotone of the tragedy. Gradually he warms up, he becomes excited, he throws up his hands, he even sobs with anguish as he proceeds and graphically de-scribes the misfortunes of the ill fated Ali and his two sons. And his audience, with downcast eyes reverently shaded with their hands, follow with all absorbing interest his words. Presently they begin to sob, and finally to cry aloud with anguish and beat their heads and breasts and tear their hair. The reciter sways his audience with thronging words of passion, with soft whispers of entreaty, with broken ejaculations of agony.

Then suddenly his mood changes.
What has passed has been a confession of their sin and a confession of the justice of any punishment that might fall on them. For the Sheites were originally Sunnites and approved of the death of Ali, and it was only later that they became Sheites and seceded from the Sunnites, and by this ceremony they lament over and expiate the sins of their forefathers. And now succeeds earnest prayer with upraised hands to God to receive Ali and his two sons into favor and to pardon them in his mercy. Then, when this is finished, narghilehs or hubble bubbles are handed round, and the whole company enjoy a quiet smoke to calm their excited feelings. In some places knives are made use of and fearful wounds self inflicted, and in some cases death has resulted.—Cornhill Magazine.

Hissing the Play. I must own that I think it is very often a slightly irrational feeling that prompts an audience to hiss, a survival of that frame of mind which induces certain islanders to go out every evening and howl and hurl their darts at the sun simply because he is going down. Our minor philosopher says there is something to him ludicrously inconsequent and comical in the whole method whereby we set about securing new plays. And to hiss a man who has spent perhaps some five or six months in the stupendous task of trying to please 2,000 people, each of them with different tastes, notions, ideals, prejudices, whims, standards, simply because he has failed to satisfy them all at all points, seems a little uncharitable and discourteous, as well as illogical. sides, hissing in many cases defeats the end for which the audience has come—that is, if that end is the consideration of the play and not the hunting of it down. What would be the result if the next exhibition of the Royal Academy should be opened simultaneously to public and critics, and every member of the public who had paid his shilling should be permitted, without giving any reasons, to stick his umbrella into any part of he he did not like while at the end of the view it should be de rigueur for the whole body of the academicians and exhibitors to run the gauntlet between two rows of the public ranged on each side from the top of the academy steps to Piccadilly, the public being entitled for their shilling to express their approbation or disapprobation in any method short of personal violence? What would be the result?-Nineteenth

Salt for Moths.

Century.

For moths salt is the best exterminator. The nuns in one of the hospital convents have tried everything else without success, and their experience is valuable, as they have so much clothing of the sick who go there, and strangers, when dying there, often leave quantities of clothing, etc. They had a room full of feathers, which were sent there for pillow making, and they were in despair, as they could not exterminate the moths, until they were advised to try common salt, They sprinkled it around, and in a week or ten days they were altogether rid of the moths. They are never troubled now. In heavy velvet car-pets sweeping them with salt cleans and keeps them from moths, as par ticles of the salt remain in the carpets and corners. Salt is not hurtful to any one, and has no bad smell. Here is a little hint I add, which, perhaps, every one does not know: For cleaning wash basins, bath, etc., use the same thing, common dry salt. Rub a little of the salt with your fingers on the basin. Often a sort of scum is noticed in the basins in a marble wash stand in the bathroom; the salt takes it off easily, and leaves the basin shin ing and clean.-Philadelphia Press.

Another New Vegetable.

Another new vegetable has been introduced into France by M. Pailleux, the indefatigable collector of new alimentary plants. The plant has been received through the aid of M. Bouley, head gardener to the maharajah of Cashmere. It is called the Congalou. This vegetable is a sort of a turnip with the form of a radish, and with the skin of an attractive bright red color. The flavor is nearly that of the ordinary turnip, but very much stronger, the consistency of the root is such that it does not soften in cooking. It appears that in the Himalayan regions the Congalou is eaten as a salad, sliced in very thin rounds and highly seasoned.—Vick's Magazine.

A Good Soldier.

It is maintained by some military authorities that it is possible a man may be a good soldier, in the sense at least of his fighting qualities, without having the least morality to recommend him. There are sometimes unsuspected virtues brought to light by violent means. A certain British regiment, noted for its ill discipline, served under Lord Cornwallis in the American war. Two of its soldiers went into a house and abused its inmates in the most cruel and shameful manner; a third officer, who knew their names, refused to disclose them and was sentenced to be hanged for that offense. The commander-in-chief rode up to him when on the gallows: "What a fool you are, Campbell, to die thus; give up these fellows' names and you are a free man." "No, my lord," was the unflinching reply, "you are in an enemy's country, and can better spare one man than two."—San Francisco Argonaut.

If you are going west bear in mind the following facts: The Northern Pacific Railroad owns and operates 987 miles, or 57 per cent of the entire railroad mileage of Montana; spans the Territory with its main line from east to west; is the short line to Helena; the only Pullman and dining car line to Butte, and is the only line that reaches Miles City, Billings, Bozeman, Mis soula, the Yellowstone National Park and, in fact, nine-tenths of the cities and points of interest in the Territory.

The Northern Pacific owns and operates 621 miles, or 56 per cent, of the railroad mileage of Washington, its main line extending from the Idaho line via Spokane Falls, Cheney, Sprague, Yakima and Ellensburg, through the center of the Territory to Tacoma and Seattle, and from Tacoma to Portland. No other trans-continental through rail line reaches any portion of Washington Territory, Ten days stop over privileges are given on Northern Pacific second class tickets at Spokane Falls and all points west, thus affording intending settlers an excellent opportunity to see the entire Territory with out incurring the expense of paying local fares from point to point,

The Northern Pacific is the shortest route from St. Paul to Tacoma by 207 miles; to Seattle 177 miles, and to Portland by 324 miles—time correspondingly shorter, varying from one to two days according to destination. No other line from St. Paul or Minneapolis runs through passenger cars of any kind into Idaho, Oregon or Washington.

In addition to being the only rail line to Spo-kane Falls, Tacoma and Seattle, the Northern Pacific reaches all the principal points in North-ern Minnesota and Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. Bear in mind that the Northern Pacific and Shasta line is the famous scenic route to all points in California.

THEY FAILED TO AGREE.

The Conference Between Illinois Coal Operators and Miners Unsuccessful.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—The conference between the m ne owners and their late employes came to an end at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when a motion to adjourn was carried after a formal refusal of the miners to accept the offer of 721/4 cents made by the operators, for a longer time than until Oct. 1. The operators had rejected the men's proposition of 75 cents a ton after Oct. 1 and they was no hope of an agreement being reached. A few of the miners and most of the operators left at once for their homes.

Wines Appeals Without Avail. Rev. Mr. Wines prevented the conference breaking up two or three times by appealing to the conferrees to try again, but there was The operators were fixed in their conclusion that there was no money in mining coal if they paid more than 7234 cents, and the miners were equally determined to have 75 cents after Oct. 1. Wines Mr. warned both that failure to agree might and probably would result in serious turbulence. But still he was unsuccessful and the conference adjourned to fight it out.

Took a Political Turn. The presence of Congressman Lawler and other politicians opposed to the Republican party in this business has given the matter a decided political color. Hon. W. L. Scott, of Pennsylvania, on Friday declared that he would accede to the reasonable demands of his miners regardless of a decision by the other operators, thus practically withdrawing from the conference, which was presided over by appointees of Governor Fifer, and the talk here is that the trouble will be made to do duty in the next campaign. Both parties here are watching developments very closely.

A Public Meeting. A meeting was held last night at Madison Street theatre at which an address was promulgated in behalf of the miners and the operators were vigorously criticised for not paying 75 cents after Oct. 1. The address insists that they could do it, while it is proved, it says, that the wages of coal miners In a speech John McBride offered to accept the decision of Lyman J. JOHN L. SULLIVAN'S SENTENCE.

The Judge at Purvis, Miss., Sends Him Up for a Year-An Appeal.

PURVIS, Miss., Aug. 19.—The Sullivan prize fighting case came to an end for the present Saturday and the judge did what most people expected he would—gave John L. the ugly end of the law on the subject, one year in jail. He also sentenced John Fitzpatrick to pay a fine of $200 for acting as referee. It was noticeable that in calling John L. to his feet to receive his sentence the judge said "Sullivan stand up," but in addressing Fitzpatrick he said "Mr." Fitzpatrick. Motions in arrest of judgment and for a new trial in Sullivan's case were Strong Petitions for Leniency.

The sentence of Sullivan was in direct disregard to petitions for a light punishment from the best citizens of the vicinity and the grand and petit jury, save one member of the latter. These petitions were read to the judge and asked that only a fine of $1,000 be imposed; as it was the first case of violation of the law and that Sullivan himself had no idea that he was so doing. The petitions were signed by all the merchants in the town, a number of farmers in the vicinity. the sheriff, and all the officers of the court, and the justice of the peace before whom the case was first tried. The judge was told that 99 people out of every 100 in the state would be gratified if only a fine was imposed. Sullivan himself made a speech of exactly 73 words, stating that he was ignorant of the law and asking for clemency.

An Insult to Mississippi. In the sentence the judge laid stress on the fact that the party journeyed through several states and pitched upon Mississippi as one whose laws they would trample under foot, and said it was a gross affront to the state, indicating their utter contempt for her statutes. When he was through Sullivan poked like he would like to have that judge in any size ring for a few rounds, but after the proceedings were concluded he recov ered his good humor.

The Case Appealed. An appeal was of course taken, and sixty days were granted in which to file a bill of exceptions. A bond was ready in the high amount-$1,000-on Sullivan's behalf, and the business of the day was done, Jake Kilrain's Ejaculation, BALTIMORE, Aug. 19 .- In the same minute Jake Kilrain was told Saturday of the sentence of Sullivan and the fact that an officer was in town to take him (Jake) to Mississippi. His only remark was "H-!!!" Jake is out on bail until next Thursday, and as it is almost impossible to collect a bond in this state it is more than probable that he will let the officer hold the bag, and skip to Canada.

is a graduate of a regular Eye College, and has received his diploma from the same; gives special attention to the correction of defects of the Eye, by the use of spectacles.

CAUTION.

I present a likeness of myseif above for the purpose of protecting the public against fraud and humbug. For about fourteen years peddlers and tramps have been going over the country and representing themselves as being me or my agent, and swindling the people out of their money, and causing many to nearly go blind by selling them cheap spectacles. I wish to say that I never travel, neither do I have any agents, I have all that I can attend to at my office in Greencastle, and hereafter whenever one of the above described tramps or peddlers presents himself just refer to the above picture and you will see at a glance that it is not me. I wish further to warn you against buying spectacles of parties as described above. They do not sell anything except cheap magnifying glasses made of window glass, and by using such glasses a short time all the muscles of the Eye become paralyzed, after which, if the vision is not destroyed entirely, it is so damaged that a person may about as well be totally blind. Hundreds of such cases have come to me for glasses within twelve months, but all I can do is to turn them away, as I cannot restore vision after a person is once blind. Now you might say that it would cost too much to get glasses of me. There is where you make a mistake. My prices are lower than you would have to pay tramps or peddlers as described above. Why: Because I fit up and sell so many spectacles that I can afford to sell at very low prices.

For instance, I sell and fit to the Eyes without cost, except for the spectacles:

Steel Frame, Good Glasses$.50
Steel Frame, Extra Good Glasses$1.00
Steel Frame, Fine Glasses$2,00
Silver Frame, Fine Glasses $2 00
Gold Frame, Fine Glasses$4.00 and all other styles in proportion.

Now, after offering you all the inducements I have, can you not see that it would pay you to come to Greencastle, even if you have to travel forty miles, and need nothing more than a pair of spectacles

A member of the Kansas Legislature said: "The law as now constituted has closed every saloon in Kansas, killed the power of rum over politics and made of this a comparatively moral commonwealth." J. C. Waters, formerly the attorney of Topeka sa-loon keepers, said: "We have enough Sunday schools, preachers, and men who ride in farm wagons without springs, to retain prohibition in Kansas, and make it fairly a success. It is to buck the inevitable to try to get it changed." If the people of Kansas, and especially of Topeka, know what they are about, in the face of disaster elsewhere, they will make big capital out of the present conditions. Topeka ought to spend $10,000 in the newspapers, advertising it as the only city of 60,000 people on the globe, without a saloon, and inviting people to come there as a safe place to raise a family.

The answer was given as follows by the Attorney-General: No. The statute says that they shall certify the number of school text-books provided for in such contract required by the children for use in the schools of their respective school corporations." Be it said to the honor of the of Putnam county that they made their requisitions properly. It now devolves upon them not to accept the supply orders from the Indiana school-book company unless filled in full. No attempt should be made to introduce the new books into the schools until the contractors have complied with the law. The trustees should not permit themselves to be deceived by any fair promises. The patrons of the schools should not buy a single Missouri-Indiana book until the trustees have received enough books to supply all of the pupils in the various school corporatime comes the patrons should not sell their good books at the ridiculously low rates now offered by the Indiana company: For a first reader, 1 cent; second reader, 2 cents. third reader, 3 cents; fourth reader, 4 cents; fifth reader, 5 cents; elementary geography, 3 cents; complete geography, 1 cent; elementary arithmetic, 3 cents; complete arithmetic, 5 cents. A circular letter issued by the Indiana school-book Co. states "We only take whole books in serviceable condition, and can pay no more for a new one than one that has been used." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the liver, kidneys or blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at Albert Allens drugstore, and W. D. Tompkins & Co., Bainbridge.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactary, as thousands of despairing patients can testify. On this point a trustworthy medical writer says: "Proper local treatment is positively necessery to success, but many, if not most, of the remedies in general use by physicians afford but temporary benefit. A cure cannot certainly be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes." Ely's cream Balm is a remwashes." Ely's cream Balm is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power with perfect safety and pleasantness to the patient.
